Building and Garden Lots,
CONTIGUOUS to, and at a ſmall diſtance from the city, to be ſold at the coffee houſe in Second ſtreet, on Wedneſday the 20th of March, at 6 o'clock in the evening, containing from about 1-4 of an acre to about 4 acres each. The ſmall lots fronting on Vine and Callowhill ſtreets, on the weſt ſide of Schuylkill Second ſtreet, and the large lots containing whole or half or quarter ſquares, ſome of them bounded on the weſt by Schuylkill and the upper ferry road including ſome fine quarry lots on Schuylkill: the whole containing about 140 acres, and formerly known by the name of Springſbury; bounded on the north by Francis ſtreet, extending from the Ridge road to Schuylkill, croſſing the canal, on which ſeveral of the lots will give fronts.
The ſituation of many of the large lots is on high ground, commanding beautiful views of the Schuylkill, ſuppoſed to be ſufficiently detached to eſcape any unfortunate diſorder which may be prevalent in the city.—The terms will be made known at the time of the ſale.
N. B. Maps of the lots are fixed up at the middle and upper ferries on Schuylkill; at Seybert's Tavern, in Second ſtreet, Northern Liberties; at Ogdens tavern in Cheſnut ſtreet, and at the coffee houſe.
The convenience of ſtone ſo near the premiſes will prove very advantageous to purchaſers.

☞ The uncommon ſeverity of the weather having prevented many perſons from viewing the lots above deſcribed, the ſale is poſtponed until Saturday the 20th April next, when it will be held on the premiſes, at 2 o'clock in the afternoon.
The terms will be caſh for thoſe lots which are 50 feet, and 49 and an half feet front, and for thoſe of a larger ſize, one half the caſh to be paid down and the other half in ſix months from the day of ſale.

CONTINUATION OF

PER SHIP MANCHESTER.

LONDON, December 23.

STATE OF POLITICS.
FOREIGN AND DOMESTIC.

THE die is caſt—the ſword is unſheathed, and the regicide republic of France once more ſtands pitted againſt all the regular governments of Europe. The ſignal for war, as we predicted in our ſecond number, has been given by the king of Naples, who, accompanied by the Auſtrian general Mack, entered the territory of the new Roman republic, on the 23d of November, drove back the advanced poſts of the French army, and called on all the directorial envoys to evacuate the country.

The French general Championnet, on receiving the intelligence of this attack, wrote to general Mack, for an explanation of the conduct of his Neapolitan majeſty, which he repreſented as a violation of treaty, and a breach of the law of nations. Whenever the minions of the directory have any thing to gain by an appeal to the eſtabliſhed cuſtoms or public law of Europe, they never fail to have recourſe to them; but whenever theſe thwart their intereſt, and oppoſe their plans, as is the caſe in ninety-nine tranſactions out of every hundred, they deride them as frivolous, reject them as nugatory, and brand them as the cuſtoms of ſlaves, and the laws of tyrants. All their diplomatic reports have invariably breathed this language from the year 1791 to the preſent day. General Mack's reply was explicit, manly, and deciſive. He ſtated the deſtruction of the Papal government, and the occupation of the Roman territory by the armies of France to be a direct violation of the treaty of Campo Formio—An uſurpation that had never been recognized by his Sicilian majeſty, nor by his auguſt ally, the emperor of Germany. The condition of continued amity he expreſsly ſtated to be the immediate evacuation of the Roman territory; and if this were complied with, hoſtilities would not be renewed. But force, he ſaid, would be oppoſed to force; and any attempt on the part of the French to enter the territories of the grand duke of Tuſcany would be conſidered as a declaration of war. Four hours was the time preſcribed to Championnet for communicating his final determination. What this was, is not yet known.

A courier, however, was immediately diſpatched to Paris, with intelligence of this event; on the receipt of which the Directory ſent a meſſage to the two Councils, couched in the true ſtyle of Robeſpierre, denouncing vengeance againſt his Sicilian majeſty, and propoſing a declaration of war, not only againſt the king of Naples, but againſt the king of Sardinia alſo; and the Councils, without any farther inveſtigation, without enquiring even how the latter monarch could poſſibly be implicated in the aggreſſion of the former, and contenting themſelves with the ſimple aſſertion of the Directory, that he "had made a common cauſe with their enemies." An aſſertion which they muſt have known to be atrociouſly falſe, ſince that unhappy ſovereign long has been, and ſtill remains, the captive of the Directory, unable to act or ſtir; the Councils inſtantaneouſly adopted the propoſition of their Pentarchs! Were we wrong, then, in calling them, "the inſtruments of their tyranny, and the ſlaves of their caprice."

Bigonnet, a member of the council of five hundred, afterwards aſcended the tribune and indulged himſelf in a ſtrain of invective againſt the perfidy of courts, and the characters of Kings, in the true ſtyle and ſpirit of the revolution. He was proceeding to extend his anathema againſt all kings, hoſtile, neutral or allied, whom he repreſented as tyrants, and to devote them to one common deſtruction, when he was interrupted by thoſe who, aware that he was about to betray the ſecret of the government, not yet ripe for diſcloſure, lamented that, with the ſame ſentiment as themſelves, he did not poſſeſs equal prudence and diſcretion. The diſcuſſion was abruptly terminated, and the hired mob in the gallery loudly applauded the wiſdom of their precious repreſentatives.

From the whole of this tranſaction, two things are perfectly evident; firſt, that the Directory might, if they had choſen it, have preſerved peace, merely by an obſervance of the treaty of Campo Formio; and ſecondly, that their refuſal to evacuate the Roman territory, ſolely reſulted from their fixed determination to make an irruption in the Neapolitan dominions the moment they ſhould be prepared.

Indeed, we have long known their reſolution to depoſe his Sicilian Majeſty, and to render his kingdom a ſcene of plunder and deſolation. The whole plan for revolutionizing Naples has long been perfected, and lain in the archives of the Directorial cabinet at Paris; while the Republican Emiſſary has for the laſt twelve months, been labouring to prepare the minds of the Neapolitans for the intended regeneration of their country. The King, therefore, has acted wiſely in anticipating the meditated blow, and in ſecuring thoſe important paſſes, the poſſeſſion of which gives additional ſecurity to his kingdom.

It is evident, too, that his Sicilian Majeſty muſt have acted in concert with the Emperor of Germany; and this circumſtance affords very ſtrong grounds of belief, that a more vigorous ſyſtem, one more worthy the dignity and independence of ſovereigns, will be ſpeedily adopted throughout Europe. It is certain, that the Emperor was extremely anxious to conclude a peace; that he ſpared no pains to accompliſh his object; and that he even propoſed that a Congreſs ſhould be holden, with a view to promote a general pacification. It is equally certain, that the French Directory had, at one time, acceded to all his demands, that were of any importance, except the reſtoration of the Roman Republic to its primitive ſtate, as ſtipulated by the treaty of Campo Formio. The obſtinacy of the French in keeping poſſeſſion of that country, and in expoſing themſelves to the danger of a premature war, rather than fulfil engagements ſolemnly contracted, diſplays, in the ſtrongeſt point of view, the profligacy of their conduct, and the nature of their deſigns.

The declaration of war againſt the King of Sardinia, and the legislative anathema pronounced againſt all Sovereigns, which the member who uttered it muſt have known to be perfectly conformable with the ſentiments of the Directory, muſt convince all Europe of the neceſſity of combining againſt a government that is bound to no treaty, and reſtrained by no moral tie, or religious obligation; a power that conſults exclusively its own intereſt; reſolved to purſue its projects of ſubverſion and aggrandizement, until it ſhall have ſubjugated the world, or periſhed in the attempt.

The king of Sardinia has long been reduced to the moſt pitiable ſituation; the mere phantom of a monarch, he has held not only his political, but his natural exiſtence by the moſt precarious of all tenures, the will of the regicide Directory of France. Poſſeſſed of all the ſtrong fortreſſes in his dominions, occupying the very citadel that commands his capital, theſe, moſt inexorable of all tyrants have made him drink the cup of diſgrace to the very dregs. They will now put an end to the farce, or rather to the tragedy, which they have been playing; blot this hapleſs prince out of the liſt of Sovereigns, and boaſt of their humanity and moderation in only conſigning him to perpetual impriſonment, or ſuffering him to drag out a miſerable exiſtence in poverty and exile. His dominions will ſupply means for the payment of their armed banditti; and his ſubjects will ſerve to ſwell their liſt of contributions and to augment their armies. The Piedmonteſe, 'tis true, are a hardy race, and love their Sovereign; but, unleſs a foreign army be immedately ſent to his aſſiſtance, his deſtruction is inevitable. And the Directory, we fear, will ſecure their prey before the neighbouring powers will be apprized of his danger.

The Princes of Europe are now at iſſue with the regicides of France; the ſword being drawn, the ſcabbard muſt be thrown away; and, ſhocking as the reflection is to humanity, the war muſt be—BELLUM INTERNECINUN;—the only alternative is, the deſtruction of the French Republic, or the diſſolution of every exiſting government. To cruſh all thrones is the avowed object of the Directory; to annihilate their power ſhould be the ſole aim of their opponents.

The criſis calls for reſolution, vigor, and unanimity. Let thoſe who now preſide over the councils of nations remember, that this is no common cauſe; that the application of ordinary remedies to extraordinary evils, will inevitably create diſappointment, and produce diſappointment, and produce diſaſter. Every nerve muſt be exerted: all reſources employed; the enemy's ſcheme muſt be anticipated, and the imperious claims of ſelf preſervation muſt, in this momentous ſtruggle for exiſtence, be ſuffered occaſionally to ſilence the dictates of an ordinary policy, and even to riſe ſuperior to the rigid mandates of political juſtice.

The French, we know from paſt experience, and recent preparation, will not heſitate to ſeize upon any neutral or friendly territory, that will ſuit their convenience or facilitate their operations againſt the combined powers. The demand of Gen. Mack, reſpecting the Duchy of Tuſcany, was juſt and well timed, ſince the Directory were preparing to enter that country, and no doubt, once more to to ſeize upon Leghorn. This port muſt, at all events, be ſecured from ſurprize, and ought to be occupied, during the war, by an Auſtrian or Engliſh garriſon.

The Emperor has committed a grievous fault in ſuffering the French to poſſeſs themſelves of the Valteline, by which their communication with the Ciſalpine Republic is eaſily preſerved. The Directory have ſince the conqueſt of Switzerland, ſent a reinforcement of 25,000 men, into Italy, which muſt have encreaſed their army in that country to about 60,000 men. On the Rhine, their preſent force ſcarcely exceeds 120,000 men; but is daily encreaſed by the requiſitions, though not with ſuch rapidity as to quiet the alarms of the government, a conſiderable body of troops muſt, of neceſſity, be kept in the interior, to check that diſpoſition to riſe which has manifeſted itſelf pretty generally, to quell the inſurrection in Brabant, which notwithſtanding a late defeat, is ſtill ſo formidable as to have rendered it neceſſary to declare Bruſſels once more in a ſtate of ſiege; and to guard their vaſt extent of coaſt from the attacks of the Engliſh, which will, no doubt be ſo frequent as to keep them in conſtant alarm.

There can be no doubt, that if the allies act with firmneſs and deciſion, they can preſent ſuch a force both in Italy and Germany, as the French will find it impoſſible to reſiſt. In the former country too, we, being maſters of the Mediterranean, can aid their operations moſt materially. Malta has been wreſted from France, who has alſo loſt the iſland of Corfou, the laſt of her uſurped poſſeſſions in the Adriatic Gulph; and there is not one ſhip which ſailed with Buonaparte from Toulon but has been either captured or deſtroyed. MINORCA, too, has ſurrendered to the Britiſh arms. In ſhort, victory now ſeems to court, in every quarter, the enemies of France; and if ſucceſs be not their lot, the fault muſt be their own.

GRAVESEND, DEC. 18.
At a court martial aſſembled and held on board his majeſty's ſhip, America, on Monday, Dec. 17, 1798.
The court in purſuance of an order from the commiſſioners for executing the office of lord high admiral of Great-Britain and Ireland, &c. dated the 13th of the preſent month December, proceeded to enquire into the conduct of capt. Thomas Thompſon, commander of his majeſty's ſhip the Leander, and ſuch of the officers and ſhip's company as were on board of her at the time ſhe ſurrendered, and was taken poſſeſſion of by the Genereux, a French ſhip of 74 guns and to try them reſpectively for the ſame accordingly.
And the court having heard the evidence brought forward, in ſupport of capt. Thompſon's narrative of the capture of the ſaid ſhip, and have very maturely and deliberately conſidered the whole, is of opinion—
That the gallant and almoſt unprecedented defence of capt. Thompſon, of his majeſty's late ſhip the Leander, againſt ſo ſuperior a force as that of the Genereux, is deſerving of every praiſe his country and this court can give; and that his conduct, with that of the officers and men under his command, reflects not only the higheſt honor on himſelf and them, but to their country at large; and the court do therefore moſt honorably acquit capt. Thompſon, his officers and ſhip's company; and he and they are hereby moſt honorably acquitted accordingly.

PLYMOUTH, DEC. 17.
Arrived the French brig Faueon, of and from Guadaloupe, laden with ſugar, coffee, and tobacco, commanded by monſ. Penſie. Enſigne de Vaiſſeau, ſailed from Guadaloupe the 6th ult. and was captured on Friday laſt, cloſe in with Bourdeax, by the Ambuſcade frigate, capt. H. Jenkins. Monſ. Penſie reports, that four days previous to his ſailing, a fleet, conſiſting of about 100 ſail, under convoy of the Vengeance, of 74 guns, ſailed from Martinique for Europe, but ſaw nothing of them on the paſſage.

TRIESTE, NOV. 15.
We have now learned the particulars of the capture of the iſle of Cerigo. The united Ruſſian and Turkiſh fleets appeared before it on the 9th of October, and immediately landed 600 Ruſſians and 400 Turks—The ex Venetian troops in the French ſervice evacuated the borough of St. Nicholas with very little reſiſtance; but fifty French defended the fortreſs two whole days with the greateſt obſtinacy, but on the 3d were obliged to capitulate. They marched out with all the honors of war, and were ſent in a frigate to Toulon or Ancona. The combined fleet ſailed again on the 17th to Zante and Cephalonia, which they took without oppoſition, the French having previouſly evacuated them. And on the 3d of November the fleet entered the road of Corfu.

PARIS.
COUNCIL OF FIVE HUNDRED.
SITTING OF DECEMBER 7.

A Secretary read a meſſage from the council of Elders, in the following terms:
"Law of the 16th Frimare.—The Council of Elders, conſidering that the hoſtilities which have been commenced by the Kings of the two Sicilies and of Sardinia, require a prompt vengeance, approve the following reſolutions:
"The Legiſlative body declares, that the French Republic is at war with the King of the two Sicilies, and the King of Sardinia."

Scarcely had the Secretary done reading, when the hall reſounded with cries of Vive la Republique. The drums beat, and the muſic of the grenadiers played ſeveral patriotic airs. The Repreſentatives and the tribunes applauded the ſounds of triumph.
The Preſident—"The ſitting is reſumed; Bigonnet is in the tribune."
Bigonnet—"The legiſlative body has made a formidable declaration. The French Republic is at war with perfidious kings. The enemies of liberty force us again to take up arms. Will not the long continued perfidy of courts teach us at legth to know the characters of kings? Under whatever maſks they cover themſelves, whatever exterior they may aſſume they are in their hearts the enemies of the Republic. Be not aſtoniſhed that I generalize my aſſertion and do not ſuppoſe that my expreſſions will make thoſe kings more hoſtile, who, under an appearance of friendſhip, conceal—(Here loud murmurs were heard, and the order of the day was called for by a number of voices—The orator continued)---Permit me, Citizens, to utter my thoughts; if I am wrong, it is my own fault, and not that of the legiſlative body. Do you ſee the inſolent aggreſſion of theſe tyrants? (Freſh murmurs---The orator continued, notwithſtanding the tumult)—If this truth is ſo unpleaſant to you, my colleagues—(Violent murmurs—The order of the day was called for)---Would you deprive me of the right to ſpeak?"
The tumult continued—Lecointre got into the tribune, to ſpeak the order of the day and, after much altercation, ſome one cried out Vive la Republique, which cry being repeated by the members of the council and by the tribune, terminated the debate. The Preſident adjourned the meeting.

PHILADELPHIA,

SATURDAY EVENING, MARCH 23.

APPOINTMENT—BY THE GOVERNOR.

FRANCIS GURNEY, Esq. Brigadier General in the Militia of Pennsylvania, vice William Macpherson, Esq. appointed a Brigadier General in the armies of the United States.

That base foreign adventurer, who by a common Republican process, has shaken off a more appropriate designation for that of Carrier, trembles at this hour, on the last verge of his hollow, short-lived and delusive popularity. With his poverty his apparent republicanism departed. Quicquid non apparet, non est, is a very just maxim, so far as it applies to a case of this kind.

A man who loses his apparent republicanism, will blackguard the President, Government, and its friends, in vain, to re-establish himself. It is easier for a camel to go through the eye of a needle (or easier to rationalise any other insuperable hyperbole) than for a demagogue, who by demagogy, has risen to opulence, to continue his walk within the consecrated pale. I say, again, therefore, when the appearance is gone, the reality is no more.

Collot D'Herbois was a player, of the lowest cast (for in that lowest there are lower grades). He was a kind of convenience, a substitute, who now "presented Py-ramus," now roared out Lion, and now personated Moonshine of Wall. Yet republicanism had a niche in her Pantheon for this fellow—and he became administrator to the commune of Paris, or secretary to some governor of a department. In Holland and France, ere the brow of decency was smirched by the vilest strumpetry, he was hissed off the stage. Indeed in no country boasting of character, could so base a monster long peep his head out of any station but a pillory.

Every generous and enlightened effusion belongs to the public; so do characteristics of folly, meanness, insolence and baseness. It is our misfortune that, (from the nature of the case) the former too frequently shun the public eye; but the latter are not unfrequently trumpeted abroad by the brazen-tongued and brazen-headed inanity which gave them birth.

Preparations are actually in train against the reign of Fouquier. Should he pollute the chair, not less than ten thousand substantial citizens will flee the commonwealth.

EUPHEMISM.

A democratic paper, in speaking of the Northampton rebels, calls them "dissatisfied persons."

POLITICAL PHYSIOGNOMY.

I have often thought that in this field the most ample scope might be found for a display of the most ample ingenuity. Much discrimination would be necessary to avoid the synonimes which might occur in this established science. But with the aid of this, perhaps no subjects offer larger promise of interest or utility. The progress of reason, and the force of experience are rapidly establishing political principles as the standard of honesty and vice—hence immense benefits must result to every person concerned in trade from the establishment of an uniform rule of judging, at first blush, whether a man be democrat or not, and of course, whether or not it be safe to trust him.

It was not long after Collot d'Herbois acquired an influence in the direction of the Theatre at Lyons, that the building was seized and taken in execution, and sold by the Huissier!

If an oysterman or a chimney-sweet were to threaten to hire a negro to beat his adversary we should say that he was both coward and fool, and that he disgraced himself.

In well-ordered governments, as in governments of an opposite complection, the off-scourings of society, the scum of jails and dungeons, are often exalted to eminence. To make a villain over-seer of the highway, is, however, a very different thing from making him over-seer of our goods, lands, chattels, tenements and hereditaments.

A government, however constituted, may become bad under the administration of bad hands. Our unhappy state, since we fell under the arbitrement of a renegade adventurer, has furnished instances corroborative of this opinion, alike abundant and melancholy. How, indeed, can good ever be expected to come from one, of whom, in the strong terms of an infallible master, all good men pray—

That in some honest hand kind heaven
Would put a whip,
To lash the rascal naked thro' the world
Even from the West to the East.

"O! thou, Othello, who wert once so pure,
"Fall'n in the practice of two cursed villains,
"What shall be said of thee?"

SHIP SALLY, CAPT. GELSTON.

It gives us pleasure to lay before the public the following letter, and the answer to it, respecting the ship Sally, belonging to this port, which, with her crew and cargo, were lately saved, by the extraordinary exertions of the crew of his Britannic majesty's ship Hind, assisted by Captain Larcom, her commander, in person, during a heavy gale of wind, at a considerable distance from his ship, then in Hampton Roads.

Philadelphia, 16th Feb. 1799.

SIR,

THE President and Directors of the Insurance Company of North-America, having been informed of the extraordinary exertions made by the crew of the ship under your command, to effect the preservation of the ship Sally, Captain Gelston, and her crew, when in imminent danger of being lost, have requested me to present their sincere acknowledgments and thanks for the generous, humane and disinterested conduct, displayed on that occasion, which I now do, with much pleasure and satisfaction.

From the well-known character of the seamen of your nation, for benevolence, generosity and bravery in their general conduct, but more especially when engaged in the calls of humanity, they may consider their exertions on this occasion only as a duty that a brother seaman owes to a brother; yet we cannot forego the pleasure of expressing the sense we entertain of their merits on this occasion.

You will permit me, Sir, to request the favour of your acceptance of one thousand dollars, to be distributed in such manner as you shall think proper, among the crew of your ship. It is not meant in nature of a compensation for the services rendered, but as a mark of our respect for the generous feelings which dictated the exertions made on the above occasion.

I have the honor to be, with due respect,
Sir,
Your most obedient servant,
(Signed) JOSEPH BALL, President.

To Joseph Lacrom, Esquire,
commander of his Britannic
Majesty's ship of war Hind.

THE ANSWER.

His Majesty's ship Hind,
Hampton Roads, March 3, 1799.

SIR,

I was yesterday honored with your letter of the 16th ultimo, conveying the thanks of the President and Directors of the Insurance Company of North America, for the small piece of service my ship's company were so happy as to render to the ship Sally, captain Gelston, when on shore in this river.

Your very liberal present of a thousand Dollars to my ship's crew, as a mark, as you are pleased to express it, of your respect for the generous feelings which dictated the exertions on that occasion, call for my warmest acknowledgments—I cannot fail assuring you, that the very handsome and polite manner in which you have conveyed to me, the sentiments of the Directors, has flattered my feelings exceedingly, and I must beg you to accept of my sincerest thanks on the occasion, being with great respect,

SIR,
Your most obedient servant,
(Signed) JOSEPH LARCOM.

JOSEPH BALL, Esquire, President &c.

Extract of a letter from capt. Charles Hardy, of the Brig Nymph of Philadelphia, dated Laguira 25th of Jan. 1799.

"The 11th inst. the Island of Plate bearing S. by E. distant about 9 miles, at 1 P.M. saw a schooner standing to Northward, at half past one she bore away for us and we found her to be in chase. We then in steering sails set our square main sail, and hauled our wind for her—at 2 she bore S. E. distant about 3 miles, I fired a gun to leeward, and run up our colours. the schooner showed none, at 25 minutes past 2, gave her a six pound shot, she then hauled her wind to the Northward, we pursued her but she outsailed us so much, that we gave up the chase. She run up English colours and hauled them down immediately; she was a schooner with standing top-sails, shewed 14 guns; with our glass, we counted 35 men abaft the mainmast, I took her to be the schooner Poll, out of Curracoa, and am since informed it really was her.

MAYOR'S OFFICE

PENNSYLVANIA LEGISLATURE.

The following Report was this morning agreed to by the House of Representatives:—

THE Committee to whom was referred a message from the Governor, respecting the proclamation of the President of the United States, announcing that combinations to defeat the execution of the laws for the valuation of lands and dwelling-houses, have existed in the counties of Northampton, Montgomery and Bucks;

REPORT—

That they have had the said message under their serious consideration, and find cause of deep regret that combinations to defeat the laws of the United States have a second time made their appearance in the state of Pennsylvania; as such combinations are repugnant not only to the pure principles of republicanism and the spirit of our constitution but also highly dishonorable to the character of a portion of the citizens of our state. That laws tending to lay the heaviest burthens on the most opulent part of the community should be opposed by those on whom they operate lightest, proves that the opposition has arisen from ignorance or the most dark and malignant design.

Your committee cannot hesitate to express with the most lively sensibility their entire disapprobation of such unwarrantable conduct, tending to the dissolution of our government and subversive of the principles of tranquility and good order, and that it is the duty of every good citizen to discountenance such treasonable combinations. Yet as the general government has sufficient power to compel obedience to their laws, and the President has in his proclamation determined so to do in this instance, and has not thought the aid of this state necessary,

Your committee offer the following resolution:

Resolved, That this house will, when required, co-operate with the general government with alacrity and promptitude to suppress unlawful and treasonable combinations to defeat the execution of the laws of the United States: but as no such co-operation is now required, this house consider their interference at present as wholly unnecessary.

It was moved by Dr. Logan, and seconded by Mr. Horn of Northampton, to add the following Resolution:

Resolved, That the Governor be, and he hereby is requested to cause full and due enquiry to be made into the causes of the said riots, and to make special report to this house thereon, particularly of any circumstances which may be alledged or discovered tending to show the origin of the same in the agency of foreign incendiaries or the seditious views of domestic traitors.

Upon which the yeas and nays were called, and were as follow:

YEAS.

Baird, Boiliau, Coolbaugh, Cunningham, Conrad, Eyre, Ewalt, Frailey, Follmer, Gehr, Hartzell, Harris, Huston, Ingels, Krause, Linnard, Lyle, Logan, Mewhorter, M'Dowell, Penrose, Rugh, Rose, Shoemaker, Snyder, Udrer, Weaver.—26.

NAYS.

Evans, Allbright, Bull, Brown, Buckley, Barclay, Brooke, Blair, Campbell, Erwin, Fisher, Forster, Hall, Hemphill, Hannum, Hopkins, Hosteller, Hendricks, Keppele, Kick, Keys, Kelly, Kennedy, Miller, Martin, M'Pherson, Power, Preston Palmer, Raum, Stocker, Stover, Strickler, A. Scott, Stewart, J. Scott, Spier, Sample, Turner, Wharton, Watson, Wright, Wilson, Welles, Williamson.—45.

[In opposition to this resolution, it was observed generally, that the persons guilty were amenable to the government of the United States who had and would adopt proper measures to bring the guilty to justice. That independent of the propriety or impropriety of such an inquiry, the result of the resolution should be adopted, would most probably end in an opinion which is now generally entertained, viz. that the persons offending were ignorant and credulous, led astray by those on whom they had placed their dependence, who were constantly exclaiming against the measures of the general government, and indeavoring to inculcate a belief that it is corrupt and oppressive in its administration, that taxes were raised to gratify ambition and support a war against a government disposed to be at peace with us. The protest of the minority on the address to the President of the United States, was admirably calculated to produce such effects, as well as the opinions, that ambassadors from the people were only necessary to effect a general peace. To these observations the virtuous mover made no reply.

JACOB PERKINS,

HAVING invented an effectual check for detecting counterfeit Bank Paper, which has received the sanction of one Bank, and the approbation of the undersigned eminent artists, and having obtained a patent, securing to him, and to his assigns, the exclusive right of the invention, hereby offers to his fellow citizens the privilege of using it upon terms, to be agreed on between him and any person disposed to avail themselves of a guard against counterfeits.

THE undersigned having examined Jacob Perkin's new invented method to detect counterfeit Bank paper, do approve of the plan, it being impossible to engrave or sink two plates perfectly alike, without the original die or hub, the counterfeiter would find it impossible to make an impression which would perfectly gage with the check from the original die.

IMPORTANT.

NEW-YORK, March 22.

Captain Clark, of the schooner Greynound, arrived yesterday in 54 days from St. Lucar, has obligingly favored the Editor of The Mercantile Advertiser with a Manuscript, containing the following interesting information:

The Ottoman court at Constantinople, on the 17th of November, notified all the foreign ministers that it had received advices by seven expresses from Egypt, that Buonaparte, having notice of a large army being in full march from Syria and other parts to attack him, held a meeting with the Beys then in Cairo, and his principal generals in the municipal house thereof; when, expatiating on the necessity of their uniting their forces to repel the army coming against them, and requiring subsidies for that purpose, the deputy of the Bey of Tripoli pulled a pistol from under his sash, and shot him dead; at which instant a crowd of the Arabs rushed in, (it being a signal preconcerted) and massacred all the French present, amongst whom were general Berthier; and another did the same by all the French in the city.

The army without fled towards Rosetta, into which from 10 to 12 thousand got, but were obliged to surrender, and were all put to the sword, &c.

These accounts are confirmed from London, Vienna, Madrid, &c.

The Russian and Ottoman fleets have made themselves masters of Zante, Cephalonia, Corfu, and all the former Venetian islands which the French had appropriated to themselves.

At Corfu they took the French ship Genereux which had escaped from Nelson at the battle of Alexandria; and the English ship Leander, which she had taken on her passage with Nelson's dispatches.

Malta is retaken; the island is in possession of the inhabitants for the present, under the government of the bishop.

The French got into La Valette, or the city, where they were forced to surrender for want of provisions, and were reduced to less than 3000.

They are sent to Toulon on parole, not to take up arms during the war. The English, Neapolitans, and Portuguese, are in possession of the harbor.

The French ship William Tell, of 80 guns, the Diana, and another frigate, which had escaped from Nelson at Alexandria, were taken at Malta; so that the whole of that fleet have been taken or destroyed.

Nelson landed 7000 Neapolitan troops at Leghorn; the King of Naples entered the Roman State with 80,000 men; General Mack notified the French Generals Championet and MacDonald to withdraw from Rome and the Roman state; the King of Naples and general Mack, entered Rome, and remained for some days in full possession of it, exercising all jurisdiction therein; but Championet advised the Directory, that he defeated the Neapolitans the 15th December, entered Rome the 16th, made 12000 prisoners (says nothing of killed or wounded) took 99 pieces of cannon, 3000 horses and mules, and 15 standards and colors; that the King and Mack were the first who fled for Naples, which he intended to enter along with them, and it is reported he did the 2d January; but that the King and Royal family had got off in an English man of war, to Palermo in Sicily, but this wants confirmation.

The blockade of Cadiz, is carried on very strictly, under command of lord Keith Elphinston. Ten sail of the line were expected daily to reinforce it, under admiral Onslow. Several Americans are detained in the fleet, and many sent to other ports, as well as ships of other nations A schooner from Salem, slipt unseen into Cadiz with Cocoa, Coffee, Sugar, and Baccalaw in hhd. Tis said that Jervis (who is at Gibraltar) is to go to replace Nelson, who comes to the blockade, which gives the inhabitants of Cadiz no small uneasiness.

An American sailor taken on board an English brig, laden with herrings, is detained by the French Consul at Cadiz, to be sent to France, to take his trial as a pirate.

The King of S. is laying hands on all foundations of hospitals, and selling them; the money to be paid into the sinking fund, under a promise of 3 per cent. interest.

The Discount on Notes fluctuating between 25 and 28 per cent. loss.

At Cadiz, the brig Eliza and Mary, and the ship ——, capt. Barker from Amboy.

Capt. Cutter, of the ship Andromache, arrived yesterday from Cork, has retaken the schooner Sally, capt. Snow, of Kennebunck—for the following detail of which we are indebted to a Friend.

On the 27th February, at day light, in lat. 24, long. 55, W. fell in with a schooner whom we thought was a rogue, as he hoisted the American flag, and soon hauled it down again. Drawing nearer, we fired a shot close a head of him, when he hoisted the French flag, which I ordered him to haul down, and send his boat on board with his papers; when I found her to be the schooner Sally of Kennebunk, capt. James Snow, from St. Christophers, bound home, and had been taken about ten days before by a French cruiser of 10 guns and 60 men in nearly the same place.

I could have done nothing with her, as I could not send the people of the ship in her; that would have also been distressing the ship, by depriving her of a sufficient number of people to her guns. However, 3 passengers who had been left at Cove, put of the bark Pallas, captain Waterman, and had come with me, offered their service to go and assist capt. Snow to New-York, which I granted, and armed them, and gave orders, for the Frenchmen to be confined, and every knife taken from them, and shove overboard, which was seen done by Mr. J. Pierce, my mate. March 1, when blowing hard, and it being rainy thick weather, although we shewed them a good light in the morning of the 5th could see nothing of her. Lat. 29, 50, long. 65, 30; yet she being so far north, and the weather very cold, have reason to believe she was clear of privateers.
